

Dr. Edwin Egede, LL.B(Hons)(Benin), BL, LL.M(Lagos), PhD(Cardiff) is a Lecturer in International Law and International Relations at the Department of Politics, Cardiff University and also a Barrister and Solicitor of the Supreme Court of Nigeria. He obtained his PhD in international law of the sea at the Cardiff Law School, Cardiff University. In addition, to teaching international law and international relations at universities in the United Kingdom and Africa, he has authored several articles on the law of the sea that have been published in peer reviewed international journals such as Ocean Development & International Law(ODIL), International Journal of Marine and Coastal Law(IJMCL) and Journal of African Law(JAL).

In 2000, he won a prestigious UN/UNITAR fellowship in international law and attended courses at the Hague Academy of International Law in the Netherlands.